Structure of the AP Language and Composition Exam

Understanding the structure of the AP Language and Composition exam is crucial for effective preparation. The exam consists of two main sections: multiple-choice and free-response.

1. Multiple-Choice Section

The multiple-choice section comprises approximately 45 questions and accounts for 45% of the total exam score. This section tests students' reading comprehension and understanding of various texts. Key characteristics include:

- Textual Analysis: Questions often focus on rhetorical strategies, authors' purposes, and stylistic choices.
- Variety of Genres: Passages may come from fiction, nonfiction, essays, and speeches, allowing students to demonstrate versatility.
- Timed Nature: Students have 60 minutes to complete this section, emphasizing the need for quick comprehension and critical analysis.

2. Free-Response Section

The free-response section consists of three essays and accounts for 55% of the total score. The essays include:

1. Synthesis Essay: Students are provided with several sources and must construct an argument that synthesizes information from these texts.
2. Rhetorical Analysis Essay: This essay requires students to analyze a given text, focusing on the author's rhetorical choices and their effectiveness.
3. Argumentative Essay: Students must develop a coherent argument on a given topic, using evidence to support their claims.

Each essay is graded based on specific rubrics that evaluate clarity, organization, evidence, and sophistication of thought.
