Types of Context Clues

To effectively teach students how to use context clues, it's essential to familiarize them with the different types available. Here are the main types:

1. Definition Clues

These clues provide the definition of the unfamiliar word within the sentence itself. For example:

- The arboreal creatures, or tree-dwelling animals, are fascinating to observe in their natural habitat.

2. Synonym Clues

Sometimes, synonyms are used to provide hints about the meaning. For instance:

- The weather was inclement, meaning it was stormy and unpleasant outside.

3. Antonym Clues

Antonym clues offer a contrast to the unfamiliar word. For example:

- Unlike his gregarious brother, who loved to socialize, Mark was quite reserved.

4. Example Clues

Examples can also serve as context clues. For instance:

- The cuisine is exotic; dishes like sushi and pad Thai showcase its diversity.

5. Inference Clues

Inference clues require students to read between the lines to deduce meaning. For example:

- After the long meeting, Sarah was fatigued, her eyelids heavy, suggesting she had not slept well.
